

MyBloomingtondale's SharePoint 2010 Upgrade UI Mockups

Enterprise Portal Team

March 1, 2012

Note: At each stage of UI planning, every effort is made to ensure the screenshots and descriptions herein accurately represent the intended look and proposed functionality of the final artifact. However, there is no implicit guarantee that the finished product will appear or behave exactly as shown in this document. Altered requirements, time and resource constraints, shifting priorities, funding and personnel changes, and a host of other factors may affect numerous aspects of actual implementation.

The New MyBloomingdale's

MyBloomingdale's is being updated to SharePoint 2010.

Please note that over time the existing IntraBLM site will be merged with MyBloomingdale's. During this transition, expect to see some content in the old format and some in the new.

A Fresh New Look

- Cleaner contemporary presentation
- More intuitive and consistent user experience
- Flexible fluid design
- Increased accessibility

Enhanced Capabilities

- Better collaboration, document management, version control and editing capabilities
- Plug-and-play styles, page layouts and Web parts
- MS Office-like Ribbon controls
- Recognizable similarity to MyMacy's Portal sister site
- Charts, calendars, lists and other out-of-the-box data presentation options
